WELL KNOWN LADY KILLED BY FALL

Mrs. Henry Lubker Fell From Hay Wagon Tuesday Evening And Lived But a Few Minutes.

WAS EIGHTY YEARS OF AGE

Accident Occurred Near Lubker Cemetery Where the Remains Will Be Buried.

Mrs. Henry Lubker fell from a load of hay about 6 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at her home one and a half miles east of the Wegand church in Grassy Fork township and was almost instantly killed. She was about eighty years of age and was well known in this county where she had lived practically her entire life.

Tuesday afternoon she went into the hay field with her son, Martin Lubker, with whom she made her home, and after a small quantity of hay was placed upon the wagon Mr. Lubker and his mother started to drive from the field, the latter sitting near the rear of the wagon. In order to drive out of the field it was necessary to cross a small ditch along the side of the road and as the wagon passed over the ditch it jolted and Mrs. Lubker was thrown to the ground.

As there was only a small amount of hay on the wagon, Mrs. Lubker did not fall but about seven feet but struck the ground with such force that death was instantaneous. Some of the hay was also thrown from the wagon by the jolt and fell upon the unfortunate lady. It was first believed that her neck was broken, but an examination of the body showed that was not the case and it is thought that her death was due to concussion as the result of the fall.

Mr. Lubker stopped the horses immediately and returned to his mother and she died a few seconds after he reached her side, she did not gain consciousness after being injured.

The accident occurred just opposite the Lubker cemetery while a number of vehicles were passing, which were returning from the funeral services of the late J. Henry Steinkamp, which were held Tuesday. A number of persons in the funeral procession witnessed the accident as did Herman Sierp, who was working in an adjoining field, and they hastened to the aid of the injured lady but her death occurred before a physician could be called or medical attention given.

Mrs. Lubker was born in Germany but moved to this country with her parents when she was quite young, and came almost immediately to Jackson county. She was a woman of excellent character and one of the early members of the Jackson County Presbyterian church at Wegand. She was known as a kind neighbor and will be greatly missed among her large circle of friends. Her husband died several years ago and since that time she had made her home with her son, Martin. She is survived by two sons, Martin and Ulysses, and one stepson, William, all of Jackson county.

The funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence conducted by the Rev. L. V. Rule, pastor of the Brownstown Presbyterian church. Burial at the Lubker cemetery near the family home.

The regiment will march to French Lick by the way of Bloomington, Bedford and Mitchell.

Thomas Taggart, of French Lick Springs, has promised the regiment a camp ground at the springs, and several of the towns and cities along the line of march also will show the crack Twenty-third like courtesy. The regiment probably will be away from the post almost the entire month of September. During this time the regimental officers also are expected to do the practice fides across country required by the war department.

Funeral at Reddington.

The funeral services of Mrs. Michael Sheedy were conducted from the Christian church at Reddington this morning by Rev. Edward L. Pettus.

Mrs. Sheedy was born May 10, 1880 in Jackson county and was married Sept. 8, 1912. Mr. and Mrs. Sheedy moved to Indianapolis in that year and have since resided there. Besides her parents and husband six brothers and four sisters survive.

Justice of Peace Miller took the case of the state of Indiana vs. William Schroer under advisement yesterday afternoon and will give his decision Thursday. The defendant was given a hearing after being charged with selling liquor in less quantity than a gallon in violation of the statute governing sales by wholesale dealers.

Justice of Peace Thompson before whom the preliminary hearing of Bruce Trubridge was venued from Justice Tuell's court, has set Tuesday August 6 as the time for the hearing. The defendant has secured Robertson and Applewhite to defend him and it is understood that they will make a hard fight for his freedom.

LOCAL PHYSICIAN TREATS RHEUMATISM ON NEW THEORY

James Ryan of Elizabethtown, is First Patient to Receive Treatment and Is Improving.

A new treatment for rheumatism is being tried with much success in medical circles throughout the country and the first patient to receive the treatment from local physicians is James Ryan, who lives near Elizabethtown. He has had only ten treatments but has shown a marked improvement. Mr. Ryan has suffered from rheumatism for about a year and when he came to Seymour on July 19 to receive the initial treatment it was difficult for him to walk and then only with the aid of two canes. When he came to the city Tuesday he was able to walk up the stairway leading to his physician's office without the aid of a cane or crutch and stated that he felt better than he had for some time.

The new treatment is of especial interest because it disapproves the old theory of the cause of rheumatism and proceeds upon the grounds that the affliction is the result of rheumatic germs. A California physician was the first to treat the disease upon the "germ theory," and after numerous tests for more than two years the results have been satisfactory.

The case of Mr. Ryan is being watched with much interest by a number of the local physicians in order to determine if his cure will be of a temporary or permanent nature.

in the Republican state convention and a number of prominent Republicans are making an active race for the nomination for governor. It is generally conceded that the present Democratic administration has been an utter failure under Governor Marshall and a Democratic legislature and that the people throughout the State of Indiana are desirous of placing the Republicans again in control of the state affairs. The Marshall administration has been marked by an extravagance of the grossest character and instead of cutting down state expenses, as they promised during the campaign, the sinking fund of the state has been reduced from $1,900,000 to $400, and there has been an evident waste of money in practically every department of the state government. It is also conceded that Governor Marshall has made a failure and that no improvement or important reform of any consequence has been made in the past four years.

Throughout the state there is much dissatisfaction for these and various other reasons with the present state officials and as the Republicans realize that they have an excellent opportunity for success in the coming election, the race between the Republican candidate is being made with considerable rivalry. What the people of Indiana desire is a good governor who will be a governor for the people and not for a clique of Indianapolis bosses, who takes more interest in their welfare than he does in the welfare of the people of the state, and it is through the Republican party that such a man can be elected.

The heat was extremely trying to Grace, the victim of the shooting. His physicians have been permitting him to remain in the courtroom only a half a day, but he pleaded so hard today to be permitted to remain on his cot that he might face his wife if she takes the stand that they relented.

The prosecution expected to complete its evidence in a few hours today. The examination of witnesses was hurried by every possible means.

Mrs. Grace's attorneys refused to outline the defense plans, but it was understood that possibly Mrs. Grace herself would be the only witness.

Judge Rosser plans to lay much stress on the admission by Solicitor Dorsey that the state's case is purely circumstantial.

It is understood that the defense would introduce some new letters to combat the murder theory formulated against the wife by the state counsel—that she plotted for several days to accomplish Grace's murder.

Grace's mother was a witness yesterday.

Through Mrs. Hill the state brought out the alleged motive for the crime—the proceeds of $25,000 insurance, which Mrs. Hill said Mrs. Grace told her she had requested Grace to take out.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

PAT AND HIS KIDS.

Now, listen. A bill has been introduced into the Hungarian parliament to pay men wages according to the size of their families!

The measure under discussion divides all government employees, including railroad men, into two general classes, known as the upper and lower. The upper class will get an allowance of $40 per year for one child, $80 for two children and $125 for three or more. The lower class will get one-half these amounts.

Which is paying men according to their needs—a new principle.

Under our present economic system men are paid according to the value of their work, but—

One employee is unmarried and has no one but himself to support. This bachelor may spend all his money on himself, and everybody says that is all right. Another has a wife and six children, and his wages are the same as the bachelor's. He finds his wages will not decently support and educate his family. And everybody says he is merely "unfortunate."

It is the way of the world.

But the Hungarian parliament says the system is wrong and entails suffering. It says the best asset of a government is its people and especially its growing children, citizens of the future.

Own its own railroads, it is proposed the government shall give the married railroad employee and his kids a little of the advantage of the unpatriotic and selfish bachelor, who provides no children for citizenship. And so of all government employees.

Should the bill become a law Pat with his six children would get as much pay as Maurice, the well dressed office man who has no children.

That would even up things. However—

Pat should not get his hopes set upon such a Christian-like arrangement during his lifetime. The bill has not passed the parliament yet. And if it should it is a long step from Hungary to this country.

Of course, if we were running this world according to the way the Nazarene would run it were he here, we would do the very thing proposed in Hungary. We would pay men according to their needs, and we would not let women and children suffer because the husband and father lacked the brains or the luck to earn good wages. But we are not running it that way.

BUTTERMILK.

Only a few years ago the chickens and the pigs got most of the residuum of a churning. They get very little of it now, for the wise men of the hospitals have educated the public to a knowledge of its value. Not only in cases of serious stomachic ailment, but for all persons of feeble or impaired digestion, buttermilk is now esteemed a boon. The once despised by-product ranks with sweet milk and outranks it both with those who find it palatable and crave it, and with those for whom it is medicinally prescribed. The taste for buttermilk is mostly acquired, but once one gets the habit it grows and sticks. Back of the developed fondness for the cold, tart, acid beverage is the agreeable consciousness that the drink, with the casein principle of milk eliminated, is a food salutary, wholesome and easily digested, and that the more one imbibes of it so much the better, says the Philadelphia Press. Recent years have witnessed an enormous increase in the consumption of buttermilk.

The bureau of statistics shows that at the end of the current fiscal year $200,000,000 will have been spent on women's dress. The first result of this showing will be an outcry against feminine extravagance, but the sober, second glance will reveal the amount of business, the number of men and women employed in various ways, and the general benefit which such an outlay means to the country. If the women were to attempt to placate their critics by dressing simply and inexpensively, there would be a general calamity how over the vast decrease in business, and the throwing of so many people out of work with resulting distress and privation. So, it is better to look over the situation a little before the figures of the cost of feminine attire precipitate a panic.

A firebug in New York was given an indeterminate sentence of fifteen years, the maximum penalty allowed by the law, which the judge in pronouncing it declared was inadequate to the crime. A man who in cold blood not only takes chances, but also deliberately invites them, of roasting men, women and children to death ought never by the law to be allowed such dangerous liberty again, any more than a smallpox patient should be permitted to roam at large through the community. The public in such cases should have all the benefit of the doubt.

The Benefit of Temptation

Overcome by the Grace of God, Which Brings One into Closer Fellowship With Christ.

If we were not tempted, we would lose much of the deep sympathy we have one for another. It also has a very humbling effect, driving us direct to the Lord for deliverance. We would not know what a wonderful Savior we had were we not hounded by the devil.

Alexander Whyte, speaking on this subject, says: "Luther, speaking to the young preacher of his day, said: 'I did not learn to preach Christ all at once. The Devil has been my best professor of exegetical and experimental divinity. Before that great schoolmaster took me in hand, I was a sucking child, and not a grown man. It was my combats with sin and with Satan that made me a true minister of the New Testament. It is always a great grace to me, and to my people, for me to be able to say to them, I know this text to be true! I know it for certain to be true! Without incessant combat, and pain, and sweat, and blood, no ignorant striping of a student ever yet became a powerful preacher.' So says one of the most powerful preachers that ever entered the Pauline pulpit."—Living Water.

No man can know the depths of his own nature or understand his weaknesses and needs until he has been thoroughly tested by the fires of temptation. And no man can know by experience the power of divine grace until he has learned to conquer temptation by the grace of God. It is only in the crucible of temptation that the human heart and spirit can be purified, and it is only by overcoming temptation that a strong spiritual manhood or womanhood can be developed. One who has never been tested by any severe temptation cannot know whether there is any real backbone to his character or not.

Therefore we all need to be brought into contact with temptation. We need to be tempted, as Jesus was, on all sides of our nature. But we all meet with temptation enough in our journey through life without seeking it, or putting ourselves in the way of it unnecessarily. We all need every particle of will-power we possess, and all the grace that God is able to bestow upon us, to overcome the temptations which we must meet; and if we desire to win in the fight, we must carefully avoid all temptations that we can avoid without neglect of duty. We must think of temptation as a thing to be feared, and must pray earnestly to be saved from it, or to be enabled to resist it.

Paul says, "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall. There hath no temptation taken you but such as man can bear; but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation make also the way of escape, that ye may be able to endure it." We can depend upon God's strength to support us in our hours of weakness and of temptation, if we are striving to live in communion with God and to do his will. If we trust at all in the strength of our own character as a protection against temptation it will inevitably fail us in the time of our greatest need.

That was Peter's mistake. He was so confident of his own courage and steadfastness that even after Jesus had warned him he asseverated his own reliability, saying "Though all men should deny thee, yet will I never." God allowed Satan to tempt Peter, and to gain a great victory over him by forcing him to deny his Lord in the most solemn manner, in order to destroy Peter's self-confidence that he might learn to trust in the grace of God alone. And Peter was a stronger and truer man and a more devoted disciple ever after because of his terrible fall.

Many a weak and sorely tested disciple has become so conscious of his own weakness and lack of faith in the time of temptation that he has almost lost heart, and yet, by just holding on, even as by the skin of his teeth, he has won a victory by the grace of God which has brought him into closer fellowship with Christ.

Two Phases of "Social Service."

"Social service" is an alliterative and fluent phrase which is often heard in these times. It commonly means service for the body, food for the hungry, clothes for the naked, and coal for the shivering. But is this the only kind of social service that can be rendered? There are multitudes of people who neither hunger nor shiver, but are sad and idle and selfish. What can be done for them? Are not ideals and uplifting influences as much needed today as food and clothes and coal?

The church may not be equal to its opportunities, but the opportunity still exists, and the agencies and institutions that can use it are still necessary to a complete life.—The Christian Register.

In Ways of His Leading.

Do I look into the future? Is there much of uncertainty and mystery hanging over it? Trust him—all is marked out for me. Dangers will be averted, bewildering mazes will reveal themselves to be interlaced and interleaved with mercy. He leads sometimes darkly, sometimes sorrowfully, most frequently by crossed and circuitous paths we ourselves would not have chosen; but always wisely; always tenderly.—Rev. J. R. Macduff.

ARISTOCRACY.

"Is your mother at home, Bub?" "No, sir. Mother is at the police station."

"What is she doing there?" "Furnishing bail for our chauffeur, who was arrested while taking her to town in our automobile this morning."

"Is your father here?" "No, sir. Father is in court."

"I see. He is helping your mother to get the chauffeur set free, is he?"

"No, father has been indicted for destroying books that the government wanted in a trust-busting case."

"And are you the only child your parents have?"

"No, sir. I have a sister."

"Is she at home?"

"I am willing that you should have all the apples you want. But why do you eat so many lately?"

"Well, I have to eat a great many 'cause the orphans want the cores."

POULTRY

DUCK RAISING IS PROFITABLE

Capital of $1,000 Will Give Excellent Start—Business Requires Care and Watchfulness.

For breeding, ducks and drakes are better in their second year.

The duck laying season generally begins in February and ends in August, although the Indian Runner ducks are credited with being year-round layers.

Hallock estimates that it costs, all told, 12 cents a pound to raise ducks up to the market age (ten weeks). This includes the cost of feed, help, marketing, eggs, insurance, etc. All over the 12 cents is clear profit. From February to May the eggs show the strongest fertility.

John Weber, the well-known duck raiser, in an address before the Ploughman Farmers' meeting at Boston some years ago, said if one owns the land $1,000 capital will give a start in the duck business. Such an amount, he said, would be sufficient to cover all expenses, buy two incubators, a flock of about 30 ducks, a house for the breeders, a brooding-house and heater, feed boards and water fountains, wire fencing, etc. Such a plant would keep one man busy, and the future growth of the plant could be built on the profits.

The point to be remembered and strictly followed is to begin small, learn the lesson well and use every effort to get good results. This will require care, watchfulness and well applied business principles. The duck business is of such a nature that if rightly carried on it is very profitable, but disastrous if neglected.

THE CONGRESS VOTES RELIEF

Condition of Refugees Who Have Gathered at El Paso and Other Border Points Is Pointed Out as Distressing In the Extreme, and Instant Measures Have Been Taken to Ameliorate the Same.

Washington, July 31.—In the house and senate prompt action has been taken to afford relief to the hundreds of Americans, mostly Mormons, who have fled from Mexico to El Paso because of persecutions and threats upon the part of rebel chieftains under command of General Orozco.

Twenty thousand dollars was appropriated by both houses to be expended by the secretary of war in the purchase of food for the refugees. A resolution was also passed making available for this work the balance left from funds appropriated for the relief of the flood sufferers of the Mississippi valley last spring. The total of these funds is about $175,000. In addition the war department, without waiting for congress, telegraphed orders to St. Louis for the shipping of tentage for 1,000 persons to El Paso at once by express.

Telegrams from El Paso and other border cities telling of conditions brought on by actions of rebels and appealing to the government to do something to relieve the situation, were received by members of both houses of congress. The telegrams stated that about 1,200 American refugees had reached El Paso and it was understood that 1,000 more were enroute to that city from Casas Grandes, Madera, Pearson and neighboring districts. Many reported threats of General Orozco and other leaders were also contained in the telegrams.

From the state department telegrams were sent to Mr. Wilson, American ambassador at Mexico City, instructing him to make urgent demand on the Mexican government to send troops to Casas Grandes and other districts without delay, to protect the besieged and threatened Americans. The American ambassador replied that troops were already within thirty miles of Casas Grandes on their way there. Every effort was being made. It was asserted, to get within striking distance of the rebels at the earliest possible moment. Consul Edwards was also instructed to communicate with General Orozco at Juarez and notify him that the United States insists on the protection of Americans from the lawless acts of his soldiers and demands observance by him of the rules of civilized warfare.

It is admitted at the state department, however, that the hands of this government are practically tied as far as the Mexican situation is concerned. The declared purpose of General Salazar and others to persecute the Mormon colonists and other Americans in Mexico with the object of bringing on American intervention, has exasperated the state department officials, but they feel themselves powerless to help matters much.

It is admitted here that should the rebels disregard demands by this government, there is nothing which can be done to punish them. Intervention by the United States in Mexico is regarded in the light of a catastrophe to American interests rather than as a remedy to the situation.

ARMY INCOMPETENT

Madero's Forces No Match For Orozco's Fighting Men.

Casas Grandes, Mexico, July 31.—Defeated after a month of hard marching across the Sierra Madre continental divide, the Mexican federales, 1,400 strong, are in full retreat to Sonora from Chihuahua.

Commanded by Generals Sanjines and Blanco, the federales, by tedious marching over treacherous roads and passes, reached Las Varas, on the opposite side of the divide a week ago, and the rebels from Casas Grandes went out to meet them Saturday last.

Rebel couriers have returned from there, a distance of fifty-five miles, reporting the defeat of the federales at Objitas, and declaring that the federales are retreating back to Agua Prelta, opposite Douglas, where they will rendezvous for the present. The losses were heavy, the couriers say, as much of the fighting was done with artillery, the federales having dragged two cannon across the mountains in pieces on muleback. The rebels also had some cannon.

The defeat of the federales give the rebels uninterrupted entrance to Sonora.

Never Touched Orozco.

El Paso, Tex., July 31.—Pascual Orozco, the rebel chieftain in Juarez, reiterated, following the announcement that the state department at Washington had made renewed protests to the Mexican government, that he meant to continue disarming all Americans until every gun and cartridge had been secured.

GAMBLERS FELL FOR GIANT THIM

Police Blew Them of $2,400,000 a Year.

THIS IS WHAT JACK ROSE SAYS

According to Go-Between Who Has "Come Through," Lieutenant Becker Got $600,000 Annually Out of Gambling Shake-Down and That Three Others, One of Whom Was a "Higher Up," Each Got as Much.

New York, July 31.—"Bald Jack" Rose, who made the confession that put Lieutenant Becker in the Tombs for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, declared also that Becker had told him that $2,400,000 was the yearly police graft from gambling, disorderly houses and other forms of blackmail.

Rose swore that Becker had confided to him that the loot was divided among four police officials, Becker himself, two policemen of higher rank and a minor official who does not wear a uniform.

"Jack," said Becker, "the rake-off is so good that my own share was $600,000, and the others got the same."

Becker's collector, having handled a good deal of the money himself, does not think that Becker or any individual pocketed $600,000 in any one year, but that Becker and his connections were distributing agents and that the $600,000 each received was sub-divided.

Becker Sits Tight.

There is just one chance for Becker to save himself. The district attorney may conclude to deal leniently with the lieutenant if he can and will tell the truth about who else received the profits of blackmail. There is not the slightest indication, however, that Becker will turn informer. On the contrary, a man with whom he has talked said that the Lieutenant's defense would be that Rose and Bridgit Webber and Harry Vallon had lied about him for the purpose of saving themselves.

No matter what course Becker may take, the grand jury will be kept in session all summer for the purpose of investigating Rose's statements that the profits of the police ring were $2,400,000 annually. The grand jury will go into information obtained by the district attorney that other police officials as well as a man powerfully connected, but not in the police department, had a stake in the game of graft.

This will be a matter also for the exercise of the special talents of W. J. Burns. Burns' detectives are already at work, but Burns himself has not contracted to remain in New York and direct the investigation. He is holding out for a big fee. And the district attorney has not yet obtained from William J. Scheiffelin, the banker, and others interested with Mr. Scheiffelin, a statement as to how much cash they are prepared to spend.

Congress Has Had Rubber District Atrocities Called to Its Attention.

Washington, July 31.—The house has been asked to take cognizance of the atrocities committed against Indian rubber gatherers in the Putumayo district of Peru. A resolution was introduced by Representative McCall of Massachusetts calling on the secretary of state for all information in his possession relating to alleged slavery and peonage in the Amazonian Peru. The state department has little information regarding conditions in the Putumayo beyond the recently published Casement report.

The state department is co-operating with the British government in an effort to bring about amelioration of the outrageous conditions of forced labor now known to have existed in the Putumayo district, Peru having pledged herself to use all her governmental authority to put a stop to the atrocities.

Not Due to Canned Goods.

Zionsville, Ind., July 31.—The death here of Elza Smith, on July 13, and the sickness of six others, has been investigated by the National Canners' association. A report received here based on statements made by Dr. O. E. Brendel and Mrs. Mary A. Klinger, shows the death and sickness were not due to eating canned goods. Mrs. Klinger says no canned goods were served at her home.

STATE CONVENTION PLANS

Delegates From All Counties in State Will Gather at Indianapolis Tomorrow to Give Formal Expression to Roosevelt Movement—The Program Now Is to Nominate ex-Senator Beveridge For Governor.

Indianapolis, July 31.—Reports received by Chairman Edwin M. Lee indicate that each county will be represented, delegates to the Roosevelt state convention, which will be held here tomorrow, having been named. The plans for the convention are being completed.

While former Senator Beveridge has not made any statement regarding his own plans, the impression prevails that he will be nominated for governor, and that he will accept.

Former Congressman Fred Landis of Logansport, who will be the temporary chairman of the convention here, will be nominated for lieutenant governor, he having given the managers the assurance that he will accept the place on the ticket.

It is said that the new party will declare in favor of county local option until the question can be settled through the initiative and referendum. The option plank will be inserted in the platform, unless the leaders experience a decided change of mind.

Southern Man as Chairman.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 31.—It is said that John M. Parker of New Orleans, an ex-Democrat, is regarded by Colonel Roosevelt as the best possible choice as permanent chairman of his coming convention. Ex-Senator A. J. Beveridge of Indiana is slated to preside as temporary chairman.

NEW FEATURE

Mounted Polo Will Be an Attraction at State Fair.

Indianapolis, July 31.—The first game of mounted polo ever played in Indiana will be given at the state fair in September by the Oklahoma City Polo club and a team made up from the United States artillery service. The two teams were engaged by the state board of agriculture for the state fair engagement today and they will play in the coliseum each afternoon and evening of the fair week. The teams will include sixteen men and twenty polo ponies and it is probable that a delegation of business men from Oklahoma City will accompany the team from that place. An effort will be made to organize a delegation of 1,000 Indianapolis merchants and manufacturers to attend the fair on Labor Day.

Horse's Unusual Predicament.

Logansport, Ind., July 31.—With one hind hoof caught in his mouth for more than a half hour, a horse belonging to John W. McGreevey came near dying. The hoof was so firmly wedged in the animal's mouth that it required the service of a blacksmith and several strong-armed men to get it out. How the horse got the hoof in its mouth is a mystery. It is thought, however, that while turning to bite at flies the horse kicked forward and wedged the iron-shod hoof into its mouth.

Hacked Opponent With Knife.

Logansport, Ind., July 31.—George Helvie attacked Allen Bowman with a knife and cut a gash nineteen inches long in his back and two six-inch gashes in his arm. Bowman had knocked down John Hires, an aged man. Hires had attacked Bowman with a frying pan because Bowman objected to the old man teasing Bowman's younger brother. Bowman is in a serious condition.

Robbed Railway Station.

Lawrenceburg, Ind., July 31.—Thieves broke open a rear window in the Aurora station of the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern railroad, pried open the desk of the agent and obtained about $20 in small change and a number of tickets. Preparation was made to dynamite the strongbox, but it is supposed the men were frightened away.

A Gain of $4,000.00.

Indianapolis, July 31.—Revised figures made by the state board of tax commissioners, which has adjourned sine die after completing its appraisal work for the year, show the total appraised valuation of corporate property assessed by the state board to be $260,020,251, an increase over the total of last year of $4,323,707.

Caught on the Trestle.

Valparaiso, Ind., July 31.—Lee Mofley, aged twenty-three years and married, of this city, a member of a crew engaged in installing a signal system for the Grand Trunk road over Deep river, near Alsworth, this county, was caught on a trestle by a passenger train and, jumping to escape death from the cars, was drowned.

REPUBLICANS TAKE CAUTIOUS BEARINGS

Most of Those In Congress Don't Declare Themselves

Washington, July 31.—Only five of the Republicans in congress now intend to quit the Republican party and follow Colonel Roosevelt into his new party organization, as a canvass of them shows. The men who are willing to go this far with Roosevelt are Senators M. E. Clapp of Minnesota, Miles Poindexter of Washington, and Joseph M. Dixon of Montana, and Representatives George Curry of New Mexico and A. W. Lafferty of Oregon. This does not mean, however, that all the other Republicans in congress will support Mr. Taft. There are in the house alone fifty-three Republicans who at this time decline to declare themselves for Taft. Nearly all of these are opposed to Mr. Taft, but are in a quandary as to what they are going to do. They have made up their minds to remain within the regular Republican organization and are now figuring how they may maintain their regularity and still refrain from supporting Mr. Taft's candidacy. Many of them intend to conduct an individual campaign for re-election to congress regardless of and independent of the presidential contests. Others, while asserting their regularity, intend to promote Roosevelt's candidacy under the surface.

The disposition among many members of congress is to maintain a seat on the fence as between Taft and Roosevelt as long as possible. There are many Republican delegations, notably in the west, whose members declare frankly that they intend to look out for their own interests in their respective districts without regard to the welfare of either Taft or Roosevelt.

Looking Over the Figures.

A Democratic paper has an account of a visit by Senator Stone to Gov. Wilson in which the Missourian went over the situation from the standpoint of electoral figures. To win at the polls a candidate must get 266 electoral votes. Senator Stone, in his estimate submitted to Wilson, claimed as certainly Democratic 152 electoral votes in fourteen states—Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia. In Senator Stone's list he sets down as probably for Wilson, Indiana, Maine, Maryland, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey and West Virginia. These eight states have eighty electoral votes. If Wilson carried all in addition to the ones previously named his electoral vote would be 232, which is still 34 short of a majority. The senator figures that these must be found somewhere in California, Colorado, Connecticut, Montana, New Mexico, New York, Ohio, Oregon and Wisconsin.

Summing up, Senator Stone told Gov. Wilson that he would be elected or else there will be no election at the polls or in the tied House, in which case, the Senate also failing to agree on a vice president, the presidency would devolve upon Secretary of State Knox. When a veteran like Senator Stone goes into such contingencies the outlook is certainly mixed. Even to make this showing he claims for Wilson the State of Maine, which has voted for every Republican nominee for president since the foundation of the party, and others usually Republican, to say nothing of Missouri, Republican in the last two national contests. It is a difficult task to put aside the great Republican plurality of four years ago and construct a table in which Gov. Wilson can get the 266 electoral votes necessary. The arithmetic of the case, as Senator Stone sees, is not in line with sanguine Democratic claims. It is far more probable that Taft will be elected or else the people will fail to elect.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

There are times when a grasp of the hand is almost a sacred thing. In sorrow it may impart comfort or convey sympathy more effectively than words. Again, it may be a warrant of the reliability of friendship or a pledge of honor; also an expression of approval or of admiration. The day following his address he received from a lady a note containing this statement:

"What you need is two things: First, a wife, and, second, lessons in education."

To this Plunkett sent this reply:

Material for Fiction Writers.

The successors of Gaboriau and other famous French writers of detective stories have just now a fine opportunity for getting material for future romances. A carnival of crime of the most up-to-date variety has terrorized Paris and its vicinity. The bandits have used automobiles in making their holdups, and have pillaged banks and shot cashiers in a style that was supposed to be the prerogative of the old-time wild western desperado.

QUARANTINE AGAINST NURSERY PESTS NEEDED

Committee Reports That Imported Trees And Farm Products Should Be Inspected.

The senate committee on agriculture and forestry has made a report on the bill for transportation of nursery stock, which will be of interest to local nurserymen and farmers.

The report says:

The United States has long been a sort of dumping ground for refuse nursery stock. The experts in the agricultural department say that more than half the important insect pests of fruits and farm crops are of foreign origin. The federal government is now spending more than half a million dollars every year fighting these pests. It is pointed out that a properly enforced quarantine and inspection law in the past would have excluded many of these insect enemies, and also many plant diseases.

The agricultural department, which is calling for this legislation, points out that there are still many other insect pests and plant diseases which may be excluded.

An illustration of this is seen in the San Jose scale, which was introduced into this country from north China, and has been carried into every state in the Union on nursery stock. This pest has already cost the orchardists of this country $50,000,000 and is adding to this sum at the rate of $5,000,000 each year. This $5,000,000 annual charge comes from the actual cost of spraying operations, which are absolutely necessary to keep the trees alive and productive, and from the shrinking in quantity and value of the fruit yield.

The alfalfa leaf weevil is another of the recently introduced foreign insect pests. Its ravages in the great alfalfa regions of Utah are now well known. There are no means to prevent it from spreading ultimately throughout all the great alfalfa regions of the Pacific coast and the Mississippi valley.

Still another recently introduced pest is the European elm-bark beetle, which has become established in Massachusetts, and is the chief agent in the destruction of the historic elms of Cambridge. The moribund or dead trunks of these splendid old trees are now being chopped down and removed at a cost, merely for the removal of upward of $30 a tree.

This new elm pest may in the end prove almost as serious an enemy to the elms in this country as the chestnut disease has proved to chestnut forests in the eastern United States, and this chestnut disease is also of comparatively foreign origin. Many other illustrations could be given, but these are perhaps sufficient to show the type of dangers which should at once be guarded against.

As already indicated, much could have been saved to the agricultural and natural forest resources of this country if legislation similar to this had been enacted years ago. Many of the plant diseases and insect enemies of the old world now established in this country, could undoubtedly have been excluded and this would have given this country a tremendous advantage for a long period in augmenting the quantity produced and lessening the cost of production.

Another grave danger at this time is the likelihood of the introduction of the potato wart with imported potatoes. The short crop of last year has already led to enormous importations of foreign potatoes, and these importations have come in many instances from districts where this dreaded disease is known to exist.

Coaches and Loquacity.

Christy Mathewson, the veteran pitcher, was praising the work of the baseball coach.

"Coaching has become a science," he said. "The coach is to the base runners what the commander is to the soldiers on the battlefield."

The veteran smiled and said:

"And the coach does all this with his mouth. No wonder, then, he's considered rather loquacious, eh? He is always being accused of loquacity you know. I've even heard him likened to Mrs. Tung."

"Wasn't your wife tired last evening after such a hard day's shopping?" a friend once asked Mr. Tung.

"Oh, very," he replied. "Why, she could hardly keep her mouth open."

"Bishop Hath Put His Foot in It."

To put one's foot in it—meaning to make a mess of things—is a very ancient expression in English. It originated in a still older proverb, "the bishop hath put his foot in it," which was said of porridge or meat that was burnt.

Tyndale, the historian, wrote: "If the pockebe be burned-to, or the meat over rosted, we say the bishope hath put his fote in the potte," and he explained it thus: "Because the bishops burn whom they lust." In some parts of England porridge that has been scorched is still said to be "biskiped."

Why an Airman Flew.

An old negro who had seen Curtiss fly approached him at New Orleans and asked timidly if he could feel his arm.

"Surely," said the puzzled aviator as he stretched forth an arm.

The old darky ran his hand up and down the biceps carefully, then said disappointedly:

"Tain't true. You ain't got no mo' wing sprouts than I is."

"No," said Curtiss seriously; "but I always make it a point to eat a pint of birdseed before I take a flight."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

His Snarl.

"I see a June bride cut her wedding cake with an heirloom, a Revolutionary sword."

"Well, if I had the ax of Richard the Lion-Hearted, I believe I could cut this steak you cooked."

Compliment.

"Miss Passee just dotes on the landlord of the Vendome hotel."

"Why so?"

"Why, when she went there, they gave her suite 16."—Puck.

Letting Him Out.

She—Excuse me, but tobacco smoking is prohibited here.

He—Well, that doesn't affect me. I smoke potato parings.—Fliedende Blaetter.

Good Business.

"He is always fighting other men's battles."

"There's no money in that."

"There is for him. He is a lawyer."

Age Limit Placed Too Low.

Think of saying a man of 60 was too old to be a judge! Yet that was New York law in 1777. It was also New York law in 1823 when Chancellor Kent was forced off the bench by it. That he was by no means decrepit physically or mentally at the time is manifest from his noted work, "Commentaries on American Law," which he wrote after his retirement.

Almost Unlimited Demand for the Paradise Feathers

ALMOST over-night, some fashions and fads become a furore, and it seems as if every woman, from Maine to California, wants one particular kind of hat, or shoe, or feather at the same moment. If the object of this sudden fancy is within easy reach (that is, if its price is low) its popularity is brief, because any idea becomes tiresome from too much repetition. But if the thing, which finds itself suddenly in brisk demand, can only be secured in limited quantities, its price is likely to soar for many weeks; or even months.

This is the case with the beautiful paradise feather which women have long admired. A spray of a few precious feathers, mounted in a pompon of ostrich or marabout, used to be considered an achievement very well worth while. Extravagantly inclined rich people might indulge in a whole paradise bird occasionally. Then came the day when the whole hat crown was encircled with a wreath of

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

IN POLONNAISE STYLE

White permo fabric—a silky mohair and wool weave—is used here in polonaise style over a skirt of cerise crepe meteore, and the vivid cerise material appears again in the collar section. The polonaise is gracefully draped and fastens at the side with a white silk button and loop matching the fastening of the front of the bodice. Neck ruffl and sleeve ruffles are of sheer white plaited net. White buckskin colonial pumps accompany this summer costume. The soft belt is of cerise.

Girls Men Hate.
Men may laugh and joke with the girl who tries to be "manly," but they never want to marry her.

Men heartily dislike girls who nag and scold; they want to run a mile from them. Men may be sorry for painfully shy girls, but these do not appeal to them. They make them feel awkward and bashful themselves. Men avoid girls who are always saying spiteful things about other girls.

Men hate untidy, slovenly girls, with badly brushed hair and a crooked waist line.

Men fight shy of dull, discontented girls; the bright, sunny ones get all their attention.

Aigrettes on Hats.

The aigrettes slant backward from the hat at amazing angles—the queerer the angle the more chic the chapeau. The Pocahontas is a favorite style. This is a rather small toque with a brim rising straight up all around and the whole hat slanting slightly toward the back. Against the high brim are arranged long quills, growing shorter as they reach back, so that the hat has much the appearance of an Indian chief's headdress for the warpath.

Clever Idea.

Putting hooks on the lower side of a vent or dress opening and eyes on the upper or usual side is a clever idea, as when the dress is ironed on "hook marks" show, as often happens with gowns introducing those tones. These metal brocades can trace their popularity to the rich Oriental effects introduced by the evening gown.

Health &
Beauty
Hints

By Katherine Morton

The beauty of the skin depends to a great extent upon the health of the sebaceous glands. These are little underlying ducts supplying the skin with the grease needed, and if their secretions are suppressed, the pores are stopped up and some complexion defect or other will result.

One must keep the pores of the skin unhampered of old oil and dead cuticle to have a good complexion, and when they seem inactive there is nothing to do but to resort to massage and very thorough bathing with hot water and a good soap. Cold water is useless against the deep seated dust and grease of the skin, even with the aid of soap. Moreover, it tends to contract the pores, making it still harder for them to yield their contents. So as a preparation for helpful massage, which is meant further to clear the stopped-up pores, the face bath must not only be hot but very complete.

There is much contention that soap is injurious to the skin, but this is by no means true. The influences of soap are tonic, antiseptic and cleansing, so that a soap must really be very bad to hurt the skin—contain, in fact, the strong alkali which scorches and irritates. A good face bath with very hot water and a bland soap leaves a smooth skin like marble, and with repeated and systematic bathing the rough one is much improved. Work thick soap suds or a soap jelly well into the pores, and rinse with repeated waters. Dab it partly dry with a soft old towel, and then sit down with a pot of good cold cream, or a little almond oil, and proceed with the massage.

Begin by massaging the muscles of the cheek just in front of the upper half of the ear, using the three first fingers of both hands. Rub outward and upward in a circular manner, with a firm yet gentle touch, covering a spot about the size of a silver dollar. If the muscles are correctly located, the upward motion will pull the skin taut about the corners of the mouth, rubbing out the drooping line at the side of the nose. If the face is heavily lined here, massage will in time strengthen the muscles that the furrows will be much softer, or disappear entirely.

Next massage the temple muscles in the same way. These are still more easily detected by the even greater influence they exert on the lines each side of the nose. The regular and systematic massage of them will prevent the formation of crow's feet, those fine lines at the corners of the eyes which laughing faces with thin skin take on so often at an early age.

Some unguent or other is undoubtedly required with massage, for otherwise the cuticle would be much irritated, and the benefits of any face cream are increased tenfold if it is used with massage. For the face constantly made-up with cosmetics, rouge and a fancy powder or liquid white, it is also necessary to cleanse the skin first with the grease before using water upon it, for otherwise the bath will only force the makeup down into the pores.

If the face skin is very delicate, do not dash cold water upon it after the hot bath, as this interferes with the circulation and is considered harmful by all the beauty people. Where the skin is very inactive two face steams could be taken a week, the massage immediately following these.

An astrigent of a harmless and invigorating sort is often needed after massage, especially if the pores are inclined to be big, and all authorities agree that a first-class cologne is the best for this. A formula for farina cologne, which is much used in this way, follows below:

Oil of bergamot 1 ounce
Oil of neroli 6 drams
Oil of rosemary 6 drams
Oil of lemon 3 drams
Oil of cloves 1 dram
Oil of lavender 1 gallon
Rectified spirit 1 gallon

The druggist would put up this formula more perfectly than it could be done at home, or else supply a bottle of German cologne, which would be very nearly as good.

Arranging the Veranda.

Do not crowd the veranda to overflowing with odds and ends, or all its comforts and charm will be dispelled. Arrangements should always be perfected to make it desirable as an outdoor living-room, well lighted at night and suitable for breakfast, luncheon, tea and even dinner. And if in a vicinity where mosquitoes and flies swarm, screens must completely inclose the porch space.

Dark Slippers.

At the present moment slippers of the paler tints are not considered good styles in Paris and footwear in richer shades of dark red, blue and violet combined with gold and silver are worn with gowns introducing those tones. These metal brocades can trace their popularity to the rich Oriental effects introduced by the evening gown.

Social Forms
Entertainments

From Brown Eyes.

Is it proper for me to go with a young man who is engaged to another? Am going with a young man whom I like very much; how am I to find out whether he cares for me? He has told me that he loved me, but I don't know whether to believe it or not. Haven't been going with him very long. Is it all right to go driving at night? Suggest something for a "gypsy tea;" also something odd to entertain about six girls and boys. How should the invitations be written? Am going to have a visitor for a week. What must I do to entertain her all the time. I live in a small place where there are very few amusements.

BROWN EYES.

I should not think you would want to accept attention from a man who was engaged; it does not look right and I would not do it. I would not be in haste to believe all a man told me if I had known him but a short time; better go slow and let time settle the question of how much he thinks of you. I do not believe in girls going driving alone at night without a chaperon. I do not know what you mean by "gypsy" tea, suppose you write and tell me about one for the benefit of the other readers of the column. For six girls and boys it is not necessary to write the invitations unless for a formal dinner party. Just ask them over the telephone or when you see them. Summer entertaining is always very informal. Do you think your visitor will wish to be amused "all the time?" I should have my friends meet her at a porch party in the afternoon or an evening card party or something like that.

A Variety of Questions.

Have read and enjoyed your answers in the paper so much, have decided to ask you to please answer a few questions for me.

Which color eyes and hair are counted the stronger, and which are most generally liked by the majority of people?

How often should a young man call upon a young lady during the week, and how late should he remain?

Would it look well for a girl to tell her friend of all her former love affairs when he seems very anxious to hear about them and insists that he should know?

Do you think a girl who is seventeen too young to have young men callers?

If you have not been introduced to a young man is it proper to speak to him when he always speaks?

Hope you will not mind helping me out in this. I thank you very much.

DIXIE GIRLIE.

Scientifically I do not know whether it has ever been proven which are the stronger, light or dark haired people. I think dark hair and eyes are greatly admired and I have heard much in favor of the golden blond, although that type is said to lose its youth sooner than the darker haired, but I have seen it work both ways.

It all depends upon how deeply interested a young man is. I should say that two or three times a week is often enough and ten-thirty late as he should stay on ordinary occasions. A girl must do as she thinks wise about her former love affairs. I do not think many affairs are to a girl's credit; I mean serious ones. Seventeen is plenty young enough for a girl to be in society. It all depends upon who the young man is whether you should speak to him. There is generally a way for a man to meet a girl by being properly introduced. I do not mind helping you out in the least.

Questions From Gladys.
I read your department every Sunday and would like to ask some questions. First, do you think it is all right for a girl fourteen to have boys at her party? Second, please give two or three games or contests to have when the boys and girls first come to keep it from being "stiff." Third, does the hair grow quicker plaited or hanging loose (at night)? Thank you for the help I have gotten from your department. I like it so much.

GLADYS S. B.

It is perfectly right to ask boys to your party, and they like to be asked. I put all the contests I can lay my hands on right into the department; perhaps the "Nautical" one in today's paper will help you. It is best to braid the hair very loosely at night after a thorough brushing to remove the dust of the day. Thank you for your kind words regarding the department.

Reply to "G. H." and "R. L."

I am very sorry I cannot answer your questions because I do not know the best way to find out is to write direct in care of the stock company.

DRESS HAIR TO SUIT FACE FROCKS ALL EASY TO PACK

One of the Most Important Points to Remember in Arranging the Coiffure.

By No Means the Least of the Blessings of the Styles That Mark the Present Season.

Let us rejoice and be glad that our garments this year are all "packable." The tub frock is a delectable thing that embraces materials of all sorts, and it can be bought very cheaply, especially when it is half made, which means that you have merely to run up the back of it with your machine after you have purchased it.

Lingerie robes, sweet little frocks of Shantung with colored embroidery, muslin garments, and the others of delaine, linen and zephyr, are all alike in certain details. They are narrow and they are flat, they will pack without creasing and they take up about as much room in a traveling case as a full grown bath towel.

Many of the cheapest stiffs are among the prettiest—take, for example, striped or checked zephyr. Some of the checks are quite quaint in black and white, combined with lines of blue and green, rose and green, mauve and gray, green and beige, the four tones being arranged together like a duster check. Stripes are effective in shaded lines of color, with threads of white. The popular Ottoman effects are also shown in this material in fine or pronounced stripes of color on white.

PRETTY PEPLUM BLOUSE

Pintucked batiste was used to build this pretty waist which buttons down the front with small white crochet buttons. An Irish lace collar finishes the neck and straps of Irish lace cross Val insertions and pintucking on the sleeve. The peplum is edged with lace.

Corded Weaves Coming.
It is said on good authority that corded weaves will be popular in the autumn. These new ribbed fabrics will include materials so light in weight as to be suitable for dress draperies and heavier ones adapted for suits, outer wraps and trimmings.

Corded Weaves Coming.

Dainty undervests of very light-weight cotton are edged at the top and around the armholes with a ruffle of fine valenciennes lace. These are not at all expensive and are soft and pretty enough to take the place of the more expensive silk undervest.

Rose Parasol.
The rose parasol is one of the novelties of the season. This is made of taffeta in a lovely pink, and it is entirely covered with scallops, the edges of which are slightly gathered to resemble rose petals.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

He Began to Tell Her His Life History

didn't care, and then it was noticed that the Hon. John was giving her all his attention. They sat together and walked together and talked together, and the fat son saw things and took his father to task by saying:

"Now, gov, don't make a fool of yourself. That girl won't make a mammy for me. Why don't you go for the widow?"

"James, the widow is blase," was the reply. "The second time a woman marries she marries for money. She marries to boss the resort. She marries hoping her husband will soon get off the earth and give her a third show."

"But she's a staver, gov. Fine looker, and what a walk she has on her! If you are elected to congress next year what a team you'd make!"

"But the Widow Savage, James, has almost scrubbed me. I will confess that I had an eye on her for a day or two, but she is cold and distant—cold and distant. She may argue that I would outlive her."

But, as if to prove that the Hon. John's diagnosis was all wrong, the Widow Savage threw herself in his way the very next day and was most entertaining. The nose of Miss Blue Eyes was out of joint again. Her second flirration was spoiled by the widow. Her eyes flashed with anger, and when the Hon. John asked her to sit in one of the grottoes she coldly declined.

"Forget her, governor, and go for the widow," was the advice of James, who didn't do any flirting but kept his eyes open.

"Blase, James—blase! Blase and artful! She'd twist me around her finger like a string. I will toy with her now and then, but my mind is made up on Miss Smith. In fact, I have already talked love to her and led her to expect a proposal."

Miss Smith was walking by herself in the hotel grounds. She was thinking of widows as she walked—one widow in particular. Miss Smith was classed way up at the head of smart, good-looking girls, and she had been humiliated. She bit her lip and gritted her teeth and felt the tears start as she sauntered. Her mother had said it didn't matter in the least, but it did matter. It mattered just the difference between victory and defeat, and—

And then the Widow Savage suddenly appeared and took her arm and walked her up the path to the Outlook, and when they were seated on the rocks she softly said:

"I am not your enemy, but your friend. You don't wish to marry that old man, do you?"

"Mercy, no!" was the reply, as Miss Smith forgot her desire for revenge.

"Well, I do."

"But you—you got Frank away from me."

"And I'm going to give him back. I was just using him as a means to an end. I called him a booby a moment ago, and he'll be on his knees to you tomorrow. The Hon. John is to be my next husband."

"But how—how do you work things so?"

"By being a widow. Now, listen to me."

The evening came on with a full, clear moon. The moon so worked on the sentimental nature of the Hon. John, as well as the surrounding corn crop, that he invited Miss Smith to wander with him. To his great joy she accepted his arm. They walked as far as Seal Rock and then sat down and gazed at the moon. Porpoise Rock, Fish Rock and Whale Rock also were near at hand.

The Hon. John neither denied nor confirmed the story. He simply looked about like a man who would marry if he found the right woman. There were mammas who secured introductions to him when they heard of his wealth, and there were a very few daughters who looked at him from afar off and wondered if they wanted another grandpa.

It was when the Widow Savage arrived that the flutter began. She was fair and forty. She had the independent toss of the head that goes with widowhood after the first year. She had little ways with her eyes and mouth that made all the other women jealous the very first day. Of course, the stupid men simply looked upon her as a widow, but it was her own sex that unmasked her. When one of them said: "That widow has come here to catch a man!" all repeated in chorus.

There were plenty of young people at the resort. Some widows, as soon as hearing that the Hon. John was wife-hunting, would have gone man-hunting in return. The Widow Savage didn't. She eluded him. She didn't coddle the fat son, as some women did. She forced father and son to keep their distance and selected only after three or four days. Her victim was a young man. He had already tangled himself up with a blue-eyed girl a year younger, but that fact did not sway the widow the least bit. When she got ready to appropriate him she did so.

The blue-eyed girl made a very poor attempt to show the people she

At intervals of about a foot, as marked off on a tape measure, Miss Smith sighed and cuddled, but that was all. As the Hon. John brought his story down to date and his voice broke and he had to use his handkerchief to wipe away the scalding tears. Miss Smith's own handkerchief got away from her and the next breeze carried it to Porpoise Rock. She twisted away her hand and ran after it and even disappeared behind the rock for an instant. She had returned and taken her seat again and surrendered her hand by the time the Hon. John had chased the tear away and was ready to say:

"And now, love, it is for you to say whether this lonely life shall continue or not."

The hand he held squeezed his.

"I have loved you since the first moment I saw you."

A harder squeeze.

"And I ask you to be my wife."

"I will, John!"

"By thunder, it's the widow!" exclaimed the Hon. John, as he scrambled to his feet.

"And we'll say a month from today if that will please you!"

The Hon. John hurried away to the hotel to consult his fat son.

"She's got you tight, gov, and you'll have to go through with it," was the information extended. "Put up job, but breach of promise and all that if you don't stand by your word. Splendid looker! Splendid dresser! Superb walker! Say, parent, you just missed making an ass of yourself. Get a move on you!"

And the Hon. John did, and they say he has never regretted it.

Writing With Invisible Ink.

There are several ways in which two persons can correspond with each other unknown to even the persons before whose eyes the very letter is held.

For instance, new milk may be used as ink. When dried this is invisible, but if coal dust or soot be scattered upon the paper the writing becomes legible.

Diluted sulphuric acid, lemon juice, solutions of nitrate and chloride of cobalt or of chloride of copper write colorless, but on being heated the characters written with the first two become black or brown, and the latter green. And when the paper becomes cool the writing disappears, leaving the paper blank again.

Two good invisible inks are made by saltwater dissolved in water, and equal parts of sulphate of copper and ammoniac dissolved in water.

Tiny Mouse Spills Drama.

Just as the hero in a romantic play at the opera house matinee in Joliet, Ill., was telling the ingenue how he loved her a mouse ran toward her from the wings.

Miss Olney, the actress, screamed in fright and ran from the stage, breaking up the scene. The hero kicked at the mouse and it ran off the stage and jumped into the orchestra.

Thereupon five hundred women, on seeing the cause of the interruption of the drama, stamped for the doors. In the rush Mrs. A. Blake was injured.

The mouse escaped.

Its Color.

"Life ought to look rosy to Jinks just now."

"Well, if his creditors are after him, I should think it was more of a dun color."

PUBLICITY LIGHT THAT SAVES

The Advertiser's Pledge of Honesty and Square Dealing is Like a Confession Before Men.

(Abstract of an address delivered at the banquet by the Fort Worth Advertising Club to the Associated Advertising Clubs of America, at Fort Worth, by James Schermerhorn.)

Publicity can do for us what the light that fell upon the Damascus road did for Saul: it can save us from ourselves. It is the searchlight turned back upon our own purposes and methods. It can save nations, states and parties by uncovering the refuge of deceit and the hiding place of duplicity. Some far-sighted corporations are beginning to love light rather than darkness. They are coming out of their secret places to give their side of the case to the common people.

Professional reserve is blinking in the sunlight of publicity. It thinks it may be able to stand it eventually. What a blessing to mankind if ministers, doctors and lawyers would daily let their credentials and records be known of all men, so that publicity could point the way straight to the right door in the urgent hour of stress and need.

The medical associations have a greater horror of getting into print than they have of transmitted infection through the marriage of the physically unfit—a frequent tragedy that might be averted if ethics did not impose solemn silence upon the learned men who could save the race through preventive publicity. Publicity can save bodily health through popular enlightenment and business through multiplied appeal.

As a man advertises from day to day in his own business, so is he. It is really the old-fashioned sign of conversion, "taking a stand in meeting." It is the formulation of your business creed, your confession before men.

You are putting into form your best promptings, your fondest hopes commercially. What you have written you have written, and when it stands out from the printed page day after day, it may speak to the necessities and purses of others, but it speaks to your sense of consistency and integrity.

If at the outset your promises are falter than your performances, there is hope; for your copy proves that you know what you ought to do in your dealings with the public. Give conscience time and it will catch up with your copy; for self-accusation is a self-starter and is not restricted by the speed laws.

Advertising may be self-revelation to begin with; but on a long contract it is pretty liable to become self-regeneration. For we all aspire to become what our friends feel we are capable of becoming. It is the distrust that despair. Publicity is the advertiser's pledge, his covenant with the consumer in the open.

Daily repeated and daily tested it should come to be in good time—for true worth is not gained at a bound, but toils upward through the right—the lodestar of his better self, the light that saves!

The advertiser who will not listen to reasons and truths is much like the man who saw a camel for the first time and walking around it said: "There ain't no such animal what lives."

HOW TO REACH THE PEOPLE

Unit the Most Potent Force in Advertising, Says Thomas E. Dockrell—Home Paper the Best.

Thomas E. Dockrell, the well-known advertising expert, in a talk before Detroit advertising men declared that most of the world's ideas on advertising are upside down and needed reversal.

"The unit is what must be looked to," said Mr. Dockrell, "not the one supreme directing head. It is the unit in the store, the salesman or the salesgirl, that must be tuned to the sales, or all other work is nearly useless. A big department store is sometimes likened to a pyramid, with the thousand of employees at the base and the big owner at the apex. But this is an upside down view. Let us suppose the head of the business has a new glove manager and this manager has got the best goods and patterns and advertised in the best way, and the customer comes in and meets Allie, the $1-a-week salesgirl, and Allie doesn't rise to the business, what use has been all the other study and energy? We then see that Allie, not Mr. Wanamaker, is the apex, and that as in most cases the pyramid is set upside down and all resting on the apex, it may topple over."

The same with advertising. A manufacturer has a small quantity, say $20 worth, of goods in a store in Peoria, Ill. He desires to see the goods sold and his trade in Peoria built up. How would he do it? There are four big circulation periodicals that are recognized as the biggest national advertising mediums. Suppose you suggested one of these as the advertising medium to reach Peoria people. He might not call you a fool, but he would remind you that he was after the Peoria field. The direct thing to get at the Peoria trade would be the Peoria newspaper, wouldn't it? There is your unit idea again. Get right at the spot and the medium for that spot. There is no question that the home newspaper is the medium to reach the people in any locality, and the addition of the units covers the broad field."
